Idea

Don't glue the top part of the frame used for the photo, this way you can change and update photos as you wish.

Gently push out and remove the squares on the front piece to make the frames. These will be used later as stands for your completed desk clock. Using a sharp craft knife, cut away the remaining tabs and sand gently to remove any rough edges.

Using the Antique Kaisercolor, paint around all edge pieces and allow to dry. For best coverage you may have to do 2-3 coats when using a pale color.

Cut a strip 10.5 cm x 28 cm from the Eternity paper and adhere to your front piece.

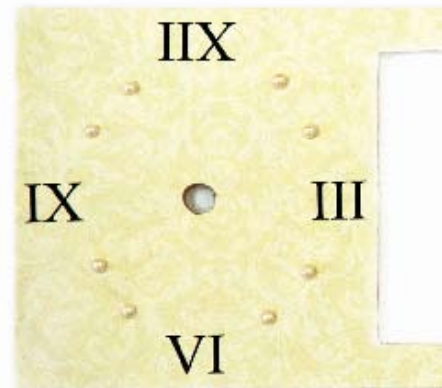

Turn this piece over and using your craft knife cut away the two squares and the hole for the clock mechanism.

Using the Clocks rubons gently rub on the Roman numerals for the numbers 3, 6, 9 and 12 and then place the adhesive pearls in the appropriate position instead of the other numerals. Add extra rubons as desired to further decorate.

Tip

Print out a clock face the size you want it onto vellum. Then you can easily see and mark positions of numbers.

Print out a quote and place behind the opening of one frame along with a special photograph for the other. Once these are secured behind the frames you can now adhere the back and front pieces together.

Once dry you can layer a few flowers and adhere to the top right hand corner. You can add any further embellishments to decorate as desired.
